

Bugs discovered during testing:

To start, you should know that everything was tested on real device Pixel 2 XL (Android 11) and emulator of Pixel 7 (API 37.2, corresponds with Android 17)

On “Select Language” page, russian language does not apply (doesn’t affect rest of app)

Preconditions:

- User should have “my moldcell” app installed;
- The app should run for the first time

Steps to reproduction:

1. Start app;
2. Allow/deny notification permission;
3. Select russian language

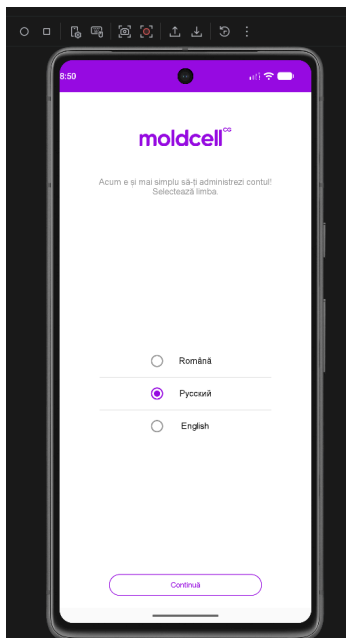

Expected behaviour:

Application should change its interface language on this page to russian

Actual behaviour:

Application changes its language to romanian

Proof:

No mapped error on “Restore password” page for non-moldcell phones

Preconditions:

- User should have “my moldcell” app installed;
- User should be on restore password page

Steps to reproduction:

1. Try to restore user with non-moldcell number. Example: 68534094, 79123456

Expected behaviour:

Application should show error that that will explain to user, what is he doing wrong (phone not found, for example)

Actual behaviour:

Request goes and response it's received. It's hard to say what happens, without access to backend, but I'm pretty sure, that frontend receives some error that wasn't mapped

No mapped error/strange app reaction for some SQL injections

Preconditions:

- User should have “my moldcell” app installed;
- User should be on login page

Steps to reproduction:

1. Introduce existent number/email
2. In password field, introduce SQL injection. Example:
 - SELECT * FROM users WHERE username = 'USER_INPUT' AND password = 'PASSWORD_INPUT';
 - SELECT * FROM users WHERE username = '$username' AND password = '$password';

Expected behaviour:

Application/backend should recognise SQL command, return to user error “Wrong login/password”. Ideally, application should restrict some special symbols that are used for SQL injections (*='"$, etc.)

Actual behaviour:

Application throws some “Unexpected error”. It's hard to say, what happens, without access to backend

Proof:

добро пожаловать в my moldcell!

Управляйте всем легко, быстро и без лишних хлопот. Пусть всё будет проще!
